

Go' head Girl Witcha Bad Self!

Antevia Ervin

thanks to mom and Junior for a lively, dope title

Divine and so fine by the wisdom of time

Dressed to impress
In a red, flashy dress Hips shakin to the east and shakin to the west Beauty dominating above the rest

This is a Black Woman
A mighty, mighty pure
Black Woman

She's a go—getter
She's a creator
She's a doctor a doctor of motivation, liberation and education

Graduating with a Ph.D of sophistication and a masters of desperation Is there too much -"tion" in her wisdom?

I think not!

Cause baby she got She got the complexion of chocolate candy
A shape so "ehm" and so dandy
She got the stride of pride
She got the hair color of sandy deserts in Africa

Carrying on her brown boastful eyes to her cousin in Jamaica

Oh yes, she got it all and she's still smiling She's styling, pro—filing, and prowling

I am the younger Black woman Right now I'm studying for my bachelors in tranquility

Soon I'll have my masters in ability Then,

I'll have the ability to preach about the Black Woman—with versatility

—She is the Black Woman
—I am the Black Woman
